The column is to start at 11 o'clock from the corner of Canal and St. Charles Street, pass along St. Charles Street to Lee Circle, three-fourths of a mile distant, around the circle and back on Camp Street to Canal, where it will be reviewed by General Lee, making a total march of one and a half miles. A number of brilliant features have been arranged for the parade, of which the massing of over a thousand children in such a manner as to form a Confederate flag, will be one of the most striking. It is believed that, jincluding the veterans and all other organizations in line, there will be about 10,000 men in the parade.

NEW ORLEANS, April 28.—With the exception of the time consumed by the presentation to General W. L. Cabell of the gold medal by the veterans of Arkansas, the second day of the Confederate reunion was in its opening hours devoted strictly to business, the reports of the committees on credentials, the Battle Abbey and historical committee being received and approved.

The report of the committee being redentials, which was adopted, gave the total number of camps represented as 755, and the aggregate of votes, 2.315. The votes by States were as follows:

Alabama, 171; Arkansas, 139; District of Columbia, 7; Florida, 80; Georgia, 199; Illinois, 2; Kentucky, 126; Louisiana, 170; Indian Territory, 49; Maryland, 111; Mississippi, 196; Missouri, 78; North Carolina, 136; Tennesseo, 181; Virginia, 113; Texas, 447; West Virginia, 20; Pacific Divi-

Report on Battle Abbey.

The report of the Confederate Memo-rial Association, upon the battle abbay was presented. It declared in effect tha last reunion. Because of the great con-fusion in the hall. Chaplate-General last reunion. Because of the great con-fusion in the hall. Chaplang-General Jones, who had undertaken to read the report, was compelled to abandon his task, and the report after being adopted, was ordered printed.

The Battle Abbey.

The executive committee say in their report:
During the past year we have kept close watch on the affairs of the Confederate Memorial Association, and have rederate Memorial Association, and have been intensely anxious to push forward with the building of our memorial hall. A year ago we hoped to be able by this time to report the work well under way. But unfortunately our hands have been still tied by the suft instituted by the assignees of our former secretary and superintendent. J. G. Underwood, for alleged commissions and other moneys due him. The appeal from the judgment of the lower court, secured by our counsel, has not yet been heard, though we have done everything in our power to hasten the hearing, and our counsel informed us six weeks ago that the case would soon be argued in the appellate court and that he felt very sanguine of reversing the case.

Their Hands Tied.

Their Hands Tied.
We have thus had our hands tied, and have been unable to avail ourselves of a very promising plan that has presented itself, and which would have enabled us to prosecute our work with the prospects of early and complete success. None of our friends can be more anxious to begin, and complete our Memorial Hall than your executive committee, who have given their time, talents and best energies to this great enterprise.

we repeat again what we have said be

We repeat again what we have said before, that our great want at present is an individual, or individuals, who will show their interests in the cause by making us liberal contributions towards completing our plans.

We have had our eyes on several sites which would be suitable for our building but have delayed the selection until we can determine definitely the character of the building.

Dr. Lones' Report.

Dr. Jones' Report.

Dr. J. William Jones, secretary and superintendent, in his report, says:
Our plans have been often delayed, and yet we hope that if the next reunion is held in Richmond we will be able at that time to show our Memorial Hall under construction, and to have appropriate ceremonies in laying the cornerstone.

The report of our treasurer shows that he has in his hands $106,073.90, and that he has the note of the city of Richmond for $50,000, which can be converted into cash any day we need it. Add to this two perfectly reliable subscriptions of $5,000 each to be paid when we begin to build, making a total of $206,073.93, inclusive of the Rouss donation.

And yet we shall need to furnish our library, provide statues and portraits for our "Hall of Fame," and for other purposes a large amount of money, and we must call upon our friends to contribute it as soon as possible.

Checks made payable to the order of Judge George L. Christian, treasurer, and sent to the secretary, J. William Jones, No. 109 N. Twenty-minth Street, Richmond, Va., will be at once turned into our treasurer, without deducting a cent for salaries, commissions or expenses of any kind whatever, all of those items being paid out of the interest on our invested funds.

We submit this report in the full confidence that despite unexpected delay in the past and obsiscles still in our way.

the Confederate Memorial Association will be able to realize in the not distant future the fondest expectations of its friends, and erect on some suitable site in the old capital of the Confederacy a beautiful hall, which will be a monument to our cause, our leaders, our heroes of the rank and file, and our noble women, and a vast storehouse from which may be drawn at any time material for the historian, who shall tell the whole truth of American history, and do justice to the part borne by our Southland.

The South in History.

The South in History.

General Clement A. Evans, of Georgia, presented the Teport of the historical committee, and, taking warning by the fate of Chaplain-General Jones, and he would not attempt to read the report, but would file it with the officers of the remain, and he asked that his action be approved and his report accepted. His wish was adopted by the convention. General Evans prefaced his report proper by a few white relative to the material prosperity of the nation at large and the South in particular. He said:

"The reputation of the people of the South is so dear to themselves that they insist upon a fair portraiture in history. The true story of the people who formed the Confederacy and fought its battles is of more value to the future citizens of the South than all the property lost in that struggle.

the South than all the property lost in that struggle.

"It is truly gradifying to ourselves as Confederate soldiers that the great interests dependent on accurate history and pure literature have not been neglected during the general commercial advance. This fair field is more pleasing to contemplate because it is becoming cleared of such noxious weeds and thorns as unpatriotic suppressions, Sectional expressions, Ungenerous treatment of illus-"In the main, the writers of all litera ture which specially concerns the event of Confederate times have become more has been remarkanic, and in the general time of the pew issue there is a decided abandonment of the former sectional rancor and unfair treatment.

"The one great principle, however, which must be sacredly regarded by all writers is that the essential truths of United States history are the rightful common property of all the people of our country. The artful suppression of important historical truths must be construed as an intentional creation of false impressions. It is a criminal hiding of a piece of the common property, and, therefore, this body of Confederate soldiers has uniformly and earnestly insisted on fullness, fairness and facts in the history of our common government.

"It will also be borne in mind that, in the course of these reports and special papers submitted to the consideration of United Cor federates, we have condemned with special enophasis the unfairness of those school-books which treat Southern questions in the sectional spirit, and we are still in earnest in driving all such books out of the schools.

Why should Northern boys and Southern boys be taught any known untruth as a part of their country's history? Why should not both be taught to respect each other and thus lay a foundation in the schools for the subsequent relation which will come in manhood? Why should there be education in the pregramme the programme.

Want to Come Here.

Want to Come Here.

The next business on the programme was the selection of a place for next reunion. Mayor McCarthy of Richmond Va., presented the claims of that city and the loud cheers, that greeted him, together with cries of "Richmond! Richmond!" that came from all parts of the hall, clearly foreshadwed the result. When the mayor on used the result. When the mayor on used, there were loud cries "Question! Question," the disposition of the re-union, being to vote before any other invitation had been extended.

J. T. Stratton, of Richmond, seconded the invitation of Mayor McCarthy, and General Lee presented Mrs. Holmes, of Richmond, the president of the Jefferson Davis Monument Association, who told of the final completion of the work of cyliecting the necessary funds for the erection of the monument.

She promised that if the reunion would come next year to Richmond, the un-erection of the monument.

She promised that if the reunion would come next year to Richmond, the unveiling would take place at that time. Colonel Bennett H. Young, of Louiville, seconded the nomination of Richmond and General Cabell, for the transfer of the control of the co mond and General Cabell, for the transMisslashpi department, General George P. Harrison, of Alabama, presented the claims of Alabama, urging that the reunion come to Birmingham. Governor J.
E. Johnson, of Alabama, also made an energetic speech in behalf of Birmingham. General Carwile, of South Carolina, seconded the nomination of Richmond, and Chaplain-General Jones extended his personal invitation for the holding of the next reunion in Richmond.
General Harrison, of Alabama, who had spoken for Birmingham, seeing that the delegates were strongly in favor of Richmond, withdrew the candidacy of Birmingham, and Richmond was selected with a roar of cheers.

RICHMOND WILL WELCOME VETERANS

City Gratified That Next Year's Reunion Will Be Held Here.

Old Confederates in Richmond were highly pleased with the news reaching here yesterday afternoon that the United Aonfederade Veterans now in annual reunion in New Orleans, decided with unanimous vote, accompanied by the never to be forgotten "rebei yell," to hold the reunion of next year in this city.

in the very nature of the case, cannot last many more years. The sons of veterans may keep up a semblance of their for a quarter of a contury yet, but the time is not far distant, when the coming for a quarter of a contury yet, but the time is not far distant, when the coming together once a year of real veterans will be a thing of the past. Possibly next year may be the last real reunion. Who knows?

It is fitting anyhow that next year's reunion should be held in Richmond, the capital of the young nation that made such a brave fight for existence. Richmond is delighted—all Virginia is delighted that the men who fought for Southern independence are to hold, what must be one among their last reunions on Viginia soil, are in the city that was their capitol, when they fought under Lee, Jackson, Beaurgsard, Johnson, Gordon, Longstreet and other heroes of the cause that was lost.

That Richmond will make the survivors glad they selected the old Capital for the seat of their next year's meeting, goes without saying.

Last Richmond Reunion.

Last Richmond Reunion.

Last Richmond Reunion.

The last reunion held in this city was in 1898, beginning on the 30th of Juna and lasting three days. It was the sixth annual reunion of the grand old boys, marshalling under the name of United Confederate Veterans. General John B. Gordon, of Georgia, was the grand commander and presided over the meetings. These meetings, were held in the auditorium on the old exposition grounds, a building that easily held ten thousand people and at every meeting it was filled to its utmost capacity.

More survivors of the Lost Cause attended this reunion than ever attended any previous one or any that has since been held or ever will be held again.

The last day of the reunion (July 20), was made memorable by the fact that on that day the connerstone of the Jefferson Davis monument was laid with imposing ceremonies. True it was laid where the monument is not going to be erected, but it was laid all the same and nobody knew any better at that time, and the enthusiasm was just as great and just as genuine as if the stone had been laid at the right place. Forty thousand visitors were in Richmond that day and very few of the leading survivors of the Confederate firing line were absent Longstreet, Hampton, Gordon, Barly, Stitz Lee and a host of other daring the Confederate firing line were absent.
Longstreet, Hampton, Gordon, Early, Stitz Lee and a host of other daring leaders of minor grades, who haw since passed over the river were here, and hundreds, even thousands of the old boys who followed them in battle followed them again that day in the great parade to Monroe Park, where the cornerstone was laid.

A writer for one of the Blohmond pa-

A writer for one of the Richmond papers of July 3, 1896, the late Colonel W. D. Chesterman, summed up the day's doings in the following language:
"Nowhere else but in the South, and in only a few cities of the South, could thore possibly have been such a thrilling spectacle as that presented here yesterday.

terday. "The feelings of the people were

"The feelings of the people were profoundly moved. Old times came back again. Once more the battle flags were lifted high. Again "Dixie" pulckened the pulse. Again was heard the memory-lowing 'rebel yell.' And all this in a community where upon nearly every house, the owner had floated the Stars and Stripes side by alde with the Stars and Bars.

"Our people are well on with the new love, but they are by no means off with the old one; nor will they over be. So far from it, it seems that, as reunion succeeds reunion here, we understand better and exhibit a more intense love for the Southern cause, and find more and more in it to be proud of."

Such was the spirit of that day and such will be the spirit of that day when the "ragged veterans" come up again next year "to the defence of Richmond."
